MORE FACTS.

On Friday evening there was given at the Mayan theatre an entertainment by the Drama League for the benefit of the City Federation that marks an epoch in the civic life of the city. The sum raised is to be used as a nucleus for a woman's building. It is a beginning, an opening wedge, but such a meagre wedge.

Recently an unofficial survey of the women working in the various Janesville industries was made and it showed that they totaled seventeen hundred. This did not include those employed in domestic service, but only those actually at work in the business world. Have not these women the right to demand recognition?

The sum raised on Friday night was such a pittance when compared to the great question of women workers that it brings forth the question of civic pride. The ladies of the City Federation are doing their utmost to better conditions. They are using every means at their disposal to raise funds for a woman's building, they have established a Janesville Center, which is beneficial to the entire community and their work should be encouraged.

Seventeen hundred women workers in the city. Pause and consider this fact. If ten dollars was raised for each worker it would mean the sum of seventeen thousand dollars for the erection and maintenance of a woman's building. It is a small enough sum to consider as a starting point. It would mean to the community that it was estimated in dollars and cents, but the intrinsic worth would demonstrate itself in every business enterprise in the city.

Soon hundreds of additional women will be needed to handle the tobacco which will come down from the poles with the first warm weather. That is why it is so important that we have a building of our own. The demand for young women will have to be brought to the city from adjacent communities. It Janesville had a woman's building, with all its adjuncts, the care for this extra population, finding them suitable rooming places, giving them a place for general meeting would be most simple.

A woman's building is not a woman's club room for city women, meeting place for various clubs and semi-social organizations, but a place where the working woman can go for rest and recreation, where she can meet her fellow workers, enjoy her hours of leisure and feel assured that someone has a personal interest in her even though she is a stranger.

Where such buildings have been erected they have proven a success. In Madison a campaign recently held resulted in the raising of nearly a hundred thousand dollars for the establishment, erection and maintenance of just such a building. It is a matter of civic pride in Madison that it will soon have a building for the working women as well as a Y. M. C. A. for the men, that will be hard to duplicate in this state.

These unselfish ladies of the City Federation should be aided and encouraged. The pittance raised by the Drama League through their individual efforts should spur on future contributions. It is a matter of as much importance as the establishment of a new factory, of reducing freight rates and might well be included in the activities of the Commercial club, for it would be an asset to the entire community, not only of Janesville itself, but of the surrounding country.

The late Mrs. Janet E. Day worked untiringly to this end. Janesville owes much to this woman who has gone from our midst and it would be a beautiful tribute to her memory if such a building could be erected. It is too much to ask the women of the city to do this work alone; there is a part that the men must play and they should realize it and not need urging to come forward and do their share.

The fund has been started and its growth should be encouraged. It should be a public place that Janesville can build and equip such a place and it would make it easier for employers of woman labor to secure help from other communities if the workers and their parents knew that Janesville offered such a protection for the strangers within their gates.

SUSCEPTIBLE OF PROOF.

According to an exchange, "German's foreign Secretary, Herr Zimmermann, has an unlimited capacity for astonishment. He is, for instance, for the third or fourth time in less than a fortnight, 'astounded' to hear that the reports circulated in Germany of indignities to Ambassador von Bernstorff and the internment of German subjects here, are false. He ascribes these reports to falsification of cable dispatches by the British authorities, and takes this method of palliating that intolerable offense, the detention of Ambassador Gerard.

"Previous statements by the German foreign office have received circulation, and some credit, because although they bore the unmistakable brand of falsehood, it was impossible to disprove them with all the evidence in German hands. But here is an allegation which is susceptible of proof. All the cables sent from this side are on file. Whatever the form of publication in the German newspapers made them seem, the cables as received there are also on file. What is to prevent Herr Zimmermann or Herr Haefer, who so vociferously supports him, from publishing the deadly news in German hands? Why is it that no competent news service would readily undertake, and execute in a few hours, and would be a most damaging blow to the allies.

"But news from Washington does not sustain the Zimmermann allegations. It is shown there that a German newspaper correspondent, at the instigation of Mr. Bryan and his friends, through a wireless communication, to a Cologne newspaper, had, with some success, given the German government to believe that when Mr. Wilson closed the discussion of submarine frightfulness, he did not mean what he said. This is an exact parallel to what Mr. Bryan told the Austrian ambassador in the historical case of the strict accountability note.

"From such a misrepresentation of the American attitude toward the renewed German menace, it was but a short step to the falsification of news in such a way as to justify a breach of international relations involving the inviolability of an ambassador of a state not even at war. It is remarkable how the recurrence of German falsification has blunted the popular perception until our people are already beginning to accept unpardonable affronts as a matter of course. No German in high official position could ever have doubted the civility of the people of the United States to the German representative. Two years ago, when the world was more concerned with the five continents would have held up its hands in horror at the boorish outrage on Mr. Gerard.

But Herr Zimmermann's childlike capacity for surprise is a national asset to Germany. It is likely to be subjected to more genuine tests in the not distant future.

DISPLAY AND AMERICANISM.

Some discussion has started over the question of appropriating $25,000 for the coming presidential inauguration. Some of our people think this is too much of a price for democratic America. They would like to see back to the days when Thomas Jefferson, in his horse to the rail fence and walked unmolested up the capitol steps. To be sure that story is said today to be mythical. But it has been told so many times that it ought to be true if it isn't.

Monarchical governments of course have to overawe the people. They pay out the taxpayers' money in cost by display to keep the taxpayers quiet. Fines, even sometimes more effective than good laws in subduing popular unrest, it is a part of the kingly business.

Our people do not need any money thrown away for impressing them with the greatness of the presidential office. They understand that perfectly anyway. At the same time, no one in America wants things to look like a display. Giving a $75,000 president a $75,000 inauguration would be about like a business man going to the office in a ten dollar suit.

Washington is one of the big capitals of the world. Representatives of all foreign powers are there watching to see how Uncle Sam does things. If he conducts his business in a dignified way it must give a wrong impression.

When the head of a public institution like a college, or philanthropy begins work, the occasion is always made much of. It is a time for review of the past and anticipation of the future. A certain amount of ceremony and form is appropriate according to the importance of the work being done. The United States of America is the greatest enterprise on earth, and inaugurating its chief executive should be dignified by an impressive observance.

In view of the war situation a number of towns have patriotically given up the campaign for marble postoffices as it might hurt their chances for a munition plant.

Having declared war against the whole world, it is expected the Germans will later prepare to do up the sun, moon, and stars and in due time tackle God.

Not many people can tell you on Feb. 22 the battles in which Washington looked the English army, but everyone knows what he did to the enemy tree.

The Germans may not be afraid of our militia, but when they see the Daughters of the American Revolution, they will surely turn back.

As long as the German submarines are permitted to operate, the best efforts of our farmers are being devoted to feeding the fishes.

In case of war, the big metropolitan papers are all equipped to let the enemy know all movements of troops before they take place.

The fighting powers occasionally take the trouble to sink a ship that doesn't have any women and children on it.

The Germans should look out, for if they come over here they'll have to listen to Mr. Bryan talk.

THE WINTER YEARN

When all the summer sun's hot rays Upon our blistered brows beat down,

When in a fretful, fevered daze, We stumble on our weary ways

And frown and fidget, curse and cuss, And make, in short, an awful fuss,

Because it is too hot for us In winter, then, the summer's heat

To think that then the summer's heat Is cursed by man as on he plods,

With fevered brow and blistered nose, To those that he may chance to meet

He nods, He nods and stops a while a scold, About the heat! He'd give his gold

For a winter's chill and cold! Ye Gods!

Ye Gods, indeed! The summer's sun Though it may bake each tortured brow,

Though it may boil us everyone, Yet, after all is said and done,

Somehow, Somehow we feel a sort of shame That we have cursed the sun's hot flame.

Oh, for a little of the same Right now!

The care and Use of a Husband

A husband is something that should be in every home and it may be made quite useful. There is nothing better to use in cleaning an old carpet than a husband. Husbands last longer and are more serviceable if kept in good order. Develop the habit of keeping your husband in a proper place and in good repair. Few of them are ornamental, but they at least may be made presentable. A little money spent on one occasionally may seem an extravagance at the time, but you'll really get the value in wear. The thrifty housewife hates to see a useless thing around the place, especially a husband. A few simple rules faithfully followed and you will have little trouble with yours. Never let them be exposed to bad air. Trim them every Saturday night.

SAY ASSEMBLY SOLID FOR SALARY BOOST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Feb. 20.—Members of the assembly today declared that the lower house would adhere to its amendment to the revisor of the statute bill increasing the salary of members of the legislature from $500 to $1,000. The matter is presented in the form of an amendment by Assemblyman Turner of Milwaukee, who would have this extra money given to the legislature because of their work on committees. The constitution fixes the salary of members of the legislature at $500. It was discovered in the revisor of the statute bill that there was a section awarding the speaker of the house $500 extra because of his services as speaker. Assemblyman Turner contends that a payment to members of committees would be likewise legal. The plan has been branded by Senator Henry E. Roethe as an artful method of circumventing the constitution.

If the assembly adheres to its position it will require a committee on conference to settle the matter. There are some members of the assembly who declare that "unless the salary amendment is attached the whole bill will be defeated. They declare that they can not live in Madison for a legislative session on so small a salary."

Another legislative contest this week will be over the war resolutions offered to present the socialist point of view. These will come up on either Tuesday or Wednesday. The lower house was offered by Assemblyman Frank B. Metcalfe, Milwaukee, and the one in the senate by Senator Frank Raguse. They declare against war; against the shipment of foodstuffs; against Americans taking passage on foreign ships; and against American ships entering the war zone. These resolutions will receive some support. An effort will be made to have them ruled out on the point of order that the legislature has already expressed itself on the matter and the legislative rule prohibits the consideration of the same subject more than once at a session. Even the point of order will involve considerable debate.

THE CALLERS.

"What is it?" called down Simon Simons, honorary president of the Society of Economical Sports as he leaned out of his second story window.

"I represent the Wideawake Fire Insurance company," called up the man looking out from the front porch. "I understand you would like to have your barn insured."

"I've thought of it," called down Simon cautiously. "How much do I have to pay to have it insured for two thousand dollars?"

"Only nine cents a month and nineteen every other month and ninety, three every third month and so on, the insurance man called up. "I would like to show you the policy. You can read it through in less than an hour."

"And if the barn caught on fire and destroyed?" Simon Simons called down.

"Absolutely," the insurance man called up. "Everything was destroyed. I would be recompensed for everything."

"Absolutely," the insurance man called up.

"And you would ask no questions concerning the origin of the fire?" Simon Simons called down.

"We would indeed—we make the most rigid investigations," the insurance man called up.

"You talk like a fool!" Simon Simons called down, and withdrew, and slammed the window and the insurance man stuck a pin in the electric bell and went away.

MISS ELIZABETH BRADLEY WEDS MATHEW KAVANAGH

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Bradley and Mathew Kavanagh, both of this city, was solemnized at seven-thirty o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's church by Rev. J. C. Hazen, reading the service. Miss Lucile Bradley, sister of the bride, and Frank Martin, were the attendants. After a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Kavanagh will make their home in Janesville. The groom has been employed for a number of years at the Yahn market.

REV. J. C. HAZEN WINS AT HOT SPRINGS

The Rev. J. C. Hazen of Peoria, Ill., former pastor of the Baptist church in this city, finishing among the six who took the "Blind Bogey" number in the big tournament at the Hot Springs Golf and Country Club, was the most fortunate of the six when the drawing took place. He was high in the first prize and the honors of the second tourney over the Hot Springs links this winter. Manager Willie Hoare had established the range of this "Blind Bogey" between 84 and 94, and the process of handicapping by self was so accurate that but four of the entrants finished outside that range of possibilities. As 88 was the blind number, it was missed by six players, or more than finished on any other figure in the range established.

FLAGS SHOULD NOT WAVE DURING NIGHT

Should Be Displayed Only Between Sunrise and Sundown, According to Army Regulations.

Since the proclamation of Mayor Fathers two weeks ago calling upon citizens to display the American flag as a way of indicating their patriotism and approval of the national administration in the present international crisis, the colors have waved over all the public buildings and from many of the private residences of the city. It is evident, however, that a great many persons are not familiar with the army regulations in regard to the flag.

One of these is that flag shall be displayed only between sunrise and sundown. It has been noticed, however, that some of the flags have waved in the breeze all night. No one would willingly be disrespectful to the national colors and one of the offenders has his excuse quoted the lines of the national song by the dawn's early light.

What so proudly we hail at the twilight's last gleaming,

Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,

O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming.

Raises a Technicality.

"How could the flag have been seen on Fort Henry by the 'dawn's early light' if it had been lowered at sundown?" he asks. Well, the point is a technical one but it is probable that regulations have been changed since Sept. 18, 1814 when the "Star Spangled Banner" was written by Francis Scott Key, a prisoner on a British man-of-war, and it may be possible that in those days the flag was allowed to wave all night. However, it is for those who are up in army regulations to decide. The only thing known is that the 1917 citizen must lower the colors at the proper time in order to keep up with army rules.

D. A. R. Takes Action.

While this act cannot be classed with abuse of the flag, the Milwaukee chapter, daughters of the American Revolution, is trying to make it so considered and is making an effort to familiarize all Americans with the flag rules.

Mrs. R. B. Hartman, state vice-regent, and also state chairman of the committee for the prevention of the desecration of the flag, has had many cases of unintentional offense which she has corrected. In fact all so-called abuses are entirely unintentional and the offenders have gladly received the rebuke.

Point to Various Abuses.

The majority of the cases are the uses of the flag for advertising purposes. Sometimes also the flag is used for certain decorative purposes, such as for a table cloth with dishes and silver displayed upon the stars and stripes. At a recent city social function the hostess was told that a table cloth and she hurriedly removed it and substituted a white cloth.

Future of Coal.

Will coal occupy as important a place in the world's economic life a century hence as it does today? The rapid substitution of electricity from water power and oil burning has limits, and the certain expansion of industry will result in the working of tremendous bituminous fields, new untapped, in Alaska, China and elsewhere.—Springfield Republican.

COLD RAISING HAVOC WITH WATER SERVICE PIPES TO DWELLINGS

None of City's Mains Frozen But Property Owner Has Much Trouble with His Laterals.

According to Superintendent Commissioner Roy M. Cummings and foremen in the plumbing department of the municipal water plant, Janesville is experiencing far less trouble from frozen pipes than a great number of cities just adjacent. At the present time so far as it is known there is not a single case of a frozen main. There are a great number of service pipes which are frozen, however. With these the department has nothing to do, the entire responsibility of thawing and replacement of buried pipes resting on the property owner.

The greater number of freeze-ups have been found to be just without basement walls, although considerable carelessness with inside freeze-ups. The department advises not a shutting off of water on the colder nights but also that the pipes be drained and that the water which is left in the pipe that has caused much trouble, the consumer forgetting to properly drain the pipes after he has shut down the water.

The ground is solidly frozen to an average depth of five feet. Electricity has been found necessary to thaw many pipes.

A complaint against the practice of dwelling owners having to stand good for the thawing of laterals or service pipes to faucets from the main, has been received, but the city claims itself not liable for this.

A problem in physics aside from the freezing of the water with the lower end of the main is the question of the local experts in municipal technique, who aver they may be well up on the legalities of city administration but who disdain to profess any knowledge of the science of water.

Prof. John Arbutnot of the high school may be able to answer, but city officials are not sure. Cummings and foremen are now sending the frost deeper, and will continue to do so until the heat is of sufficient intensity to completely overcome the frost.

City Engineer Kerch reports on the opening of the city's sewerage system. The matter of the Jackson street bridge was scheduled for discussion at the meeting this afternoon of the city commission. City Engineer C. V. Kerch has been working on the report covering the structure and this will be presented to the commission. The report will show whether there are possibilities for repairs or whether it has been deemed advisable that an entire new bridge be necessary.

Another matter to be presented was that regarding the proposed Glen street culvert or sewer under the railway embankment. In a report to the commission, Mayor James A. Falkner, railroad engineers this morning have practically agreed to the proposition advanced by the city, which has sought the outlet for flood waters for some time past.

The MacDowell club will meet with Mrs. M. O. Mount, 314 S. Wisconsin, at 8 o'clock on Wednesday night. It is to be a program day, instead of a lecture as was announced through mistake in sending notices to club members. The music for tomorrow will be of the 16th and 17th century.

HEART OF THE SUNSET
GAZETTE'S NEW SERIAL
"Heart of the Sunset" by Rex Beach, author of "The Spoilers," will be the next serial story to appear in the Gazette. The opening chapter will be published on Wednesday. The novel has its historic basis in the Gutzburg story, the expedition of the Rangers into Mexican territory to recover the body of a murdered American citizen. The author gives a vivid picture of conditions in Mexico around his exceptional characters. It will be a serial which will command more than usual interest.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN DISTRICT CONVENTION

Local Members of State Association Meet Today for Interesting Conferences.

Sunday schools of the Janesville district gathered today in the Sunday school room of the First Presbyterian church for a day's convention. Workers, teachers, and students from the district gathered for several days.

The convention opened in the morning with a devotional meeting led by the Reverend Charles E. Ewing. E. A. Finn, county president, talked on the District Goal. In the afternoon session, S. A. Boyd, physical director at the University of Wisconsin, and superintendent of the "teen age boys' work of this district gave a talk on organized classes and "teen age boys."

This was followed by a talk by F. L. Rogers, the general secretary of the State Sunday School association, on "Training the Workers." George A. Jacobs also made a few remarks on the same subject and the question was thrown open for general discussion.

At four o'clock there was a general conference and discussion for all in attendance and a business meeting for the election of officers at five o'clock.

Lunch will be served at the church at six o'clock by a committee of which Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Haight and Mrs. Alfred Olsen are joint chairmen.

The evening session begins at 7:30 with devotional led by Rev. C. H. Cummings. A program was given.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN HAS OVER $9,000.00

Campaign Directors Make Plea to Entire City to Make Up the Last Thousand Dollars.

Yesterday's receipts brought the total amount raised in the Y. M. C. A. campaign to $9,000.00, and with this fact before them the directors of the association met last evening to consider means of raising the balance of the fund. All realize that the task will be a hard one, but are confident that the people of this city will come to the rescue.

The Y. M. C. A. will need $10,000 to slip through the hands when the goal is so near. S. O. S. calls were sent out last night to those people who have not yet been communed with, new recruits were drawn up, the services of a number of the former workers were accepted to continue the campaign, and the association groomed itself for the final fight.

Several of the larger contributors have already pledged additional sums with which to make up the deficit, and promises from as many more indicate that success will come from the campaign, not eventually but inside of the next few days. Contributions are to be solicited in new fields and the "Y" directors appeal to the entire city, to all regardless of whether or not they have been solicited, to do what they are able for the association, but the raising workers insist that the raising workers must be the hardest part of the entire venture; hence their appeal to Janesville.

The difficulty of the task before them has in no measure diminished the optimism of the campaigners, and they are starting on the work of the week with redoubled efforts.

OPERATION ON DR. NUZUM PROVES TO BE SUCCESSFUL

SECOND SOCIAL EVENING AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Members of the Congregational church who are over twenty years of age will have another opportunity to indulge in an evening of games and study at the church. The program was held last night at the church.

Members of the recently organized Arcadia club last evening held a big stag party at the Hotel Planters. Fifty guests were present.

A beautiful dinner an excellent program of speaking and musical numbers were rendered, Frank Kennedy acting as toastmaster. The address of welcome was given by Leonard Tuckwood and was followed by a solo by John Dumpy. Ralph Camps spoke entertainingly on "Success." Darrell Sullivan and Carl Ashcraft rendered a solo after which Mr. Bell spoke on "Club Life." Mr. Snow gave a delightful Hawaiian guitar solo and Jean F. Shearer of the high school faculty spoke. The program was closed with the address of Attorney W. H. Dougherty, his topic being, "A Message From Washington." All in all the occasion was a decided success.

NEWS NOTES—MOVIELAND

Richard Tibb is a husband now. The announcement, if it went no further, would fail to stir interest.

But when the fair readers of this column learn that Richard Tibb is none other than Richard Travers, popular hero of the movies, they will without doubt want to learn more.

The marriage occurred recently and the young couple are now on their honeymoon. The bride was Miss Lillian Castell, better known to theatergoers as May Franklin, an ingenue, who was one of the beauties of "The Time, the Place, and the Girl."

The time limit of a year in which, under Illinois statutes, divorced persons may not marry, had just expired in Mr. Tibb's case. He was divorced Feb. 4, 1916, from Augusta West Tibb, an actress. He was married to the first Mrs. Tibb in 1908.

He charged desertion. It was brought in evidence that Mr. Tibb's fascinations, that have turned the heads of feminine movie fans all over the country, were not sufficient to lure his wife to follow when he moved from Philadelphia to Chicago.

The romance which has just culminated in marriage began, it is said, in Toronto, in Mr. Tibb's school days. He met Miss Franklin again in Chicago. He had changed his name to Richard Travers and become famous. She had changed her name back to baptismal Lillian Castell, had forsaken the footlights, and was living quietly at home.

The romance which has just culminated in marriage began, it is said, in Toronto, in Mr. Tibb's school days. He met Miss Franklin again in Chicago. He had changed his name to Richard Travers and become famous. She had changed her name back to baptismal Lillian Castell, had forsaken the footlights, and was living quietly at home.

Mr. Tibb's fascinations, that have turned the heads of feminine movie fans all over the country, were not sufficient to lure his wife to follow when he moved from Philadelphia to Chicago.

"DAUGHTER OF GODS" FULL OF WONDERS

William Fox's Screen Masterpiece Featuring Miss Annette Kellerman, Opened for Three-Day Engagement at Myers Theatre Yesterday.

"A Daughter of the Gods" now playing at Myers Theatre, is a picture filled with many wonders. For photography, natural scenery, stage setting and feats of skill and daring, this picture which is said to have cost $1,000,000, and probably did, is rightly called the "picture beauty." It is so far surpasses any feature of any description that has been before the public that it marks an art and beauty epoch in the progress of the cinema. It is, in the entirety, a thing of such exquisite beauty that everyone should see it.

A story of fiction, fantasy and fairy lore, tremendous in its scope of scenic possibilities, it embraces in its unfolding the most beautiful of the world's water nymphs, but the most ideal natural water settings. The Far-East city, the sultan's palace, interior and exterior, the reproduction of medieval battles are done to the life.

Miss Kellerman, who created the star role, has no misnomer in "A Daughter of the Gods," for she is called literally "The American Aphrodite," but whereas her Greek predecessor only arose from the sea, Miss Kellerman not only arises from it in all her amazing loveliness, but under goes such a series of adventures and hazards as baffle description.

She is conceded by critics of the feminine form to be the most admirably developed and perfectly proportioned woman in the world. One has ample chance to judge of this fact throughout the entire picture.

The music of the large orchestra melodically runs along with the charming fairy story, and tells it with an appeal that is wholly lacking in the spoken word. Every human passion that has part in the spectacle, the conservation of every tiny proportion of woman in the world, are given the magic of the music.

The pictures of the sea in its many moods, the irrepressible Lee children, the many mermaids, are especially charming. The entire production is a gorgeous dream which will long linger in the memory of those who see it.

Just Like Him. A doctor was called to treat a fond mother's baby boy. He diagnosed the ailment as acute rheumatism, and the mother responded quickly: "Acute rheumatism! I might have known it. Everything he does or says is cute."

An English astronomer of prominence claims that there are airquakes, entirely independent of earthquakes, that are caused by the explosion of meteors in the atmosphere.

BELOIT ALUMNI TO BANQUET AT GRAND

Meeting of Rock River Valley Association Will Be Held Wednesday Evening.

The mid-winter meeting of the Rock River Valley Alumni association of Beloit college, will be held at the Grand hotel in this city tomorrow evening. The banquet will be served at seven o'clock. Owing to a misunderstanding the original announcement of the affair stated that the gathering would be at the Myers hotel.

S. M. Smith who is chairman of the local committee on arrangements is anxious to have a large attendance of the Janesville members of the association. All persons who plan to be present are requested to notify Mr. Smith not later than Wednesday morning.

The program for the meeting will be informal. There will be several members of the faculty who will give addresses and Tsing Chang, the Chinese student at Beloit who won the state college oratorical contest last week, will be a guest.

Called as Petit Juror FINDS HE'S NOT CITIZEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., Feb. 20.—Although he had voted for several years, it was not until August Schandewald was called for jury service at the present session of the circuit court, that it was discovered he was not a citizen.

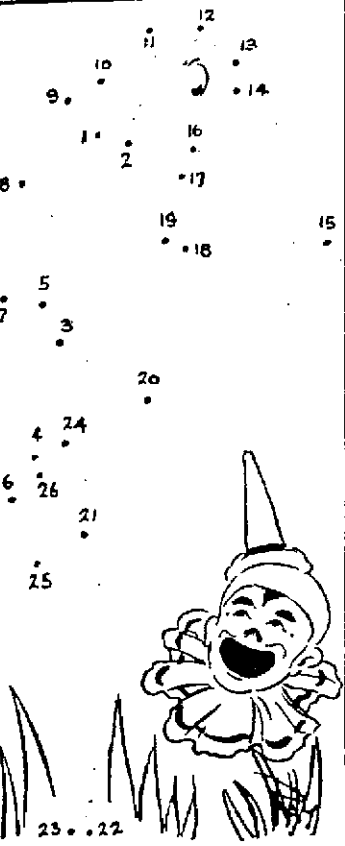

Judge George Grimm of Jefferson immediately ordered he be excused from service. Following his usual course in opening court, Judge Grimm urged the attorneys and litigants in the various actions on the calendar to attempt a settlement out of court before the present session of the circuit court, that it was discovered he was not a citizen.

Judge Grimm has made a record of settling fully forty percent of the cases coming up in the local courts. This method has also had the effect of greatly reducing the number of cases filed in the local courts, as both the interested parties and their attorneys will make every effort possible at a settlement, even before filing an action.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson in care of The Gazette.

Mrs. Thompson: I always read your column—it is so encouraging. I am particularly interested in the letter signed "A Friend," about divorce, because the difficulty is precisely mine also.

That is a practical Christian myself, like, I suppose, "A Friend," is, from her letter, I could think that I was not against the law of Jesus for a Christian woman, too, and that I am not a "remnant," but you do not say anything at all about that in your answer, and I am sure that "A Friend" wanted to know. I have been reading your column, and I am sure that "A Friend" wanted to know. I have been reading your column, and I am sure that "A Friend" wanted to know.

And he says: "And I say to you, that whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another, committed adultery against me." And he says: "And I say to you, that whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another, committed adultery against me."

Of course, you say about the "overwhelming sentiment of our people," and about the "courts' approval of divorce and remarriage," and about the "overwhelming sentiment of our people," and about the "courts' approval of divorce and remarriage."

Of course, indeed, God knows I think everybody has a right to their happiness, that is, if they don't do wrong in order to be happy. I suppose it makes a difference whether you are a drunkard, or a profligate, or a "happy" to ruin a good girl, but I don't think they have any right to that sort of "happiness," do you? Of course you don't.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a girl friend who is a movie actress. She left home a few years ago and we have not heard from her since. Her sister has been looking for her, but she does not know the address of any movie places. Will you please tell me the name of some of the movie places?

Household Hints

FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.
The colonial colors, blue and buff, are directly the result of an ordinary corn-cake (head "cold"). Nearly all cases of suppuration (abscess) in the frontal sinus, the sphenoid and ethmoid cells and of the maxillary sinus are attributable to neglected "cold."

A simple "cold" is about as complicated as an eight day clock, though easier to keep running.
Nose and throat surgeons are treating thousands of simple "colds" every day, treating them by surgical means. Children are maimed for life by simple "colds." Youths are subjected to the most heroic skull and brain operations in the endeavor to relieve them of the results of simple "colds."

BREAKFAST DISHES.
Individual Steamed Omelet.—Break one egg in large thick teacup. Add to this three tablespoons of condensed milk, a little salt and pepper or onion can use milk and a little butter. Beat thoroughly. Put in pan of boiling water, cover and steam ten minutes. This will puff up to the top of the cup. Very delicate and delicious, an agreeable change from the old way of cooking eggs. Serve the egg in the teacup in which it was cooked. It takes a large cup, but it is worth the effort.

Baked Milk Toast.—Trist crusts from slices of bread nearly one-half inch thick; toast to uniform light brown. Melt a little salt and pepper in a pan. Slice toast, and remove each slice from toaster dip quickly into boiling water and lay in well-buttered baking dish. Butter toast with melted milk on which has been melted a tablespoon of butter. Cover closely and bake fifteen minutes. This is a nice change from the old way of cooking milk toast that no one who has eaten this can enjoy the other.

Medicines from Average.
Every vegetable garden is a medicine chest recognized by physicians as of considerable value in the treatment of diseases. Onions, for example, contain sulphur, and are a good remedy for indigestion and as an aid to gastric digestion. They also help to allay rheumatic pains. Turnips and parsnips have peculiar oily principles which are of value as an aperient and diuretic. They are also claimed to be good for coughs and hoarseness. Carrots are useful for correcting derangements of the liver. They are excellent for a dressing for painful wounds and swellings.

Simple Home Remedies.
For Croup with Kidneys.—Melt butter and molasses together and give until child vomits. Very easy and very sure.
For Colds, Sore Throat, Quinsy.—Spread oil of turpentine over with a brush on the throat, cover with cloth, lie down and cover up warm. You will be surprised when you get up; a sure relief.

Sweet Potato Hint.
Wash and place sweet potatoes in a hot oven ten minutes, remove and when cooled one can peel them without a particle of waste, after which they can be placed in the roaster. This saves time as the skins come off as quickly as from cooked Irish potatoes.

Punish Food Wasters.
IN ENGLAND; ONE TO PEN.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Feb. 20.—So many precautions have been taken by the government to conserve its food supply that persons caught wasting food are severely dealt with. A striking example of the severe persons was given recently when a sailor was sent to prison for five years for setting fire to a quantity of barley worth $400. "This is not the time," said the court in passing sentence, "when we can stand the loss of stocks of food."

Former Greek Shiner Now Dancing Master.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Gingles' Jingles.
HEZIKAH STEVE PERSIMMONS.
Hezikah Steve Persimmons was a jolly, husky guy, there was nothing Hezikah would not gladly give a try. Hezikah's dad and mother of his feats were justly proud, and proclaimed him coming champion—proclaimed it long and loud. For they knew no gezer living had a thing on him for strength, he was broad across the shoulders, in the pinions he had length. He was also there at baseball, he could sprint and never fanned, in the high school back at Podunk they were eating from his hand, his physique had got in perfect, but his opinion lacked the punch, in his dome was rooms unfurnished, still some college got the hunch he was just the boob they wanted, so when he had finished high, to the varsity he beat it, he would make the colors fly. Hezikah was a wonder, they had made a lucky find, in the freshman team of football this young Sandow soon was lined—lined against the old-time warriors who had fought their way to fame, but he mowed from the scrimmage with a battered bleeding frame; on a cot went back to mother, back to Podunk and the farm, free from baseball, free from football, free from rough stuff, free from harm.

Chemically Pure Dishes in This Restaurant.
San Francisco, Feb. 20.—Chemically pure dishes are the latest. A local hotel has just installed an apparatus whereby dirty dishes, put in at one end, come out the other, not only clean, but sterilized. They know they are chemically pure, it is announced, because a bacteriologist took 'em over afterwards.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE USUAL RESULTS OF A SIMPLE COLD.

At least nine out of ten cases of mastoiditis and gathering in the ear are directly the result of an ordinary cold. (head "cold"). Nearly all cases of suppuration (abscess) in the frontal sinus, the sphenoid and ethmoid cells and of the maxillary sinus are attributable to neglected "cold."

Hardening of the Arteries.
1. Kindly describe the symptoms of hardening of the arteries. I am 53 years old, weigh 180 pounds, 69 inches tall and have a blood pressure of 160 millimeters. Never ill until two years ago, then had a severe attack of acute gastritis, with intermittent heart beat. Have had only one slight attack since. Gave up smoking and became teetotaler, on doctor's orders.
(C. H. R.)

ANSWER.—Hardening of the arteries produces no characteristic symptoms. Most commonly it causes a general failure of health and "pep." Shortness of wind, tendency to put on excessive weight, and novel digestive disturbances are common. The best specialist for such cases. Your blood pressure is certainly nothing to worry about.

Rice Powder Inflames the Eyes.
Will you kindly explain how the use of a fine rice powder in the toilet affects the eyes? My eyes blur after reading, but are not sore. The rice powder matted in one eye, and I have had to use eye drops. I have used it for years.
(Mrs. V. H.)

ANSWER.—Rice powder often causes inflamed eyelids, conjunctivitis, redness and itching. The grains are sharp and irritating if they get in the eyes. It probably is not the cause of your trouble.

WOMEN TO JUDGE DOGS AT FANCY CANINE SHOW IN MADISON SQUARE.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Feb. 20.—Every dog certainly has his day at Madison Square Garden beginning with this one. Eight women judges of the fabulously valued Bredos at the Westminster Kennel club show, which is perhaps the dog show with more real dog than any like event anywhere in the United States.

SAVE THE BABIES.
These are authentic quotations from the pamphlet on babies by Dr. L. Emmet Holt, of Columbia, and Dr. Henry L. K. Shaw of Union university.
"Milk for the bottle fed baby may be pasteurized by placing a sterilized bottle in a deep saucepan filled with cold water and left on the stand until the water boils. Then remove from stove to table and allow bottles to stand in the hot water for twenty minutes. Then cool by placing them in cold water, after which pour them on ice. Rapid cooling is of great importance. PASTEURIZE ONLY IN THE SEPARATE FEEDING BOTTLES. NEVER MILK HAS BEEN PREPARED."

WHATCHAMA COLUMN.
Ostriches.
Whoever invented ostriches realized what fool animals they were and fitted them up with stomachs to cope with the situation. The ostrich can digest whatever he can swallow. Beat or hushot, it is all the same to them.
Hardware store spells restaurant to him. And his idea of rich food is twenty dollar steak and pie.
If you are troubled by an extra or superfluous ostrich at any time, steer him up against a meal of radical sales and egg wasters. Throw in a package of unheated safety pins, a bundle of cog wheels and a box of ice picks and you've got him. He may survive, but he won't laugh.

MOTHERS OF THREE MEMBERS OF ASSEMBLY HAVE DIED.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 20.—Within the past three weeks the mothers of three members of the assembly have died. In each case the mother was over eighty years of age. The members of the assembly are Charles D. Ross of Beloit, D. J. Vincent of Kenosha and J. W. Connor of Douglas.

WOMEN REFORM THE FRENCH COURT CUSTOM.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Paris, Feb. 20.—Madame Louis J. Malvy, wife of the Minister of the Interior, is credited with reforming the court custom, as old as republicanism, in France, of allowing the bar a married woman to sit as a witness in court as "Woman Leblanc" or "Woman Lebrun" as the case might be, and an unmarried woman as "Girl Lebrun" or "Girl Leblanc."

SEEK TO NAME PARK AFTER DEAD SENATOR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 20.—A proposal to change the name of a young state park at the juncture of the Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers to "Glenn State Park," in honor of the late Senator Robert, Glenn of Grant county, whose efforts made possible the park, is embodied in a bill offered in the lower house by Assemblyman Carl Kurtenacker of La Crosse. For many years Senator Glenn labored to have this park created. It was suggested at times that it should be called "Marquette Park," because of the fact that it was from this site that Father Marquette river. But the proposal that the park should now be named after Senator Glenn, who died just at the close of the last session, is meeting with general favor.

LONDON NOT HUNGRY SINCE "U" WAR BEGAN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Feb. 20.—"The returns of the Port of London for the past eight months will not encourage the hopes of the Germans of starving London or ruining its trade by the depredations of submarines," says the latest report of the Port of London Authority on conditions at the great London docks.

The tonnage entering and leaving the port shows a substantial decrease as compared with the previous year, but the quantity of goods actually unloaded shows a decrease of only three percent, the tonnage being 1,829,000 last year as compared with 1,885,000 last year. Prohibitions on the import of several classes of merchandise have been in force during this period, and have undoubtedly affected the figures appreciably.

The stocks of goods, especially foodstuffs, in the public warehouses has actually increased 22 percent, being 687,000 tons against 564,000. The present stocks are the largest in the history of the port of London since the traffic of the port of London has increased from 1,649,000 tons in 1913 to 1,829,000 for the corresponding period this year.

The detailed report indicates increases in receipts of most articles of food. Wheat, sugar, rice, cheese, meat and tea show a decrease. The supply of timber is of next importance to foodstuffs, says the report. Difficulty in handling has been acute in this respect, owing to the cancellation of one-third of the 700 timber piers, who handle and stack the timber after it has been discharged by the stevedores.

The irregularity of the arrival of timbered ships has also been a trying factor. A few days ago thirteen timber vessels arrived at the docks on a single tide. But in spite of such difficulties, the stock of timber at the docks has increased from about 200,000 tons to more than 350,000 tons.

Much of the work of the docks is now being done by soldiers from some of the numerous dock laborers' battalions specially recruited for work of this kind here and in France.

BELOIT COLLEGE COULD FURNISH WIRELESS CORPS.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beloit, Feb. 20.—Beloit college could put two wireless sets into the field within twenty-four hours and would have a nucleus of twenty-two men with some military training for the organization of a college unit. Dr. C. A. Sawyer, of the physics department, holds a government master license and probably would direct the work of the wireless corps.

The Highflyers

In Which Clyde's Future and Kindred Matters are Discussed.
"Well, Marge, what do you think?" Tom breezed into the office where Marjory was busy with the dinner. "Clyde Jaynes came to the office this morning and went to work." He stopped impressively.

"What would he do in an office?" asked his wife absently, as she peered into the kitchen.

"Do! Anyone would suppose you had never seen Clyde Jaynes to be scoffed at. 'You are not needing my remarks, let me plan your butter by a teaspoonful, please.' I say Clyde Jaynes went to work. Get it, Marge, I glanced over her shoulder at her husband with a wiled nose to show that she was attending."

"And I am to teach him all I can about my end of the business," continued Tom enthusiastically.

"Oh, I see why you are effervescent so noticeably," said Marge, looking at her husband and floured both cheeks as she turned around, saying: "Let me see how this added dignity affects you."

"You're messing my coat all up with flour," Tom seized the plump lady by the waist.

"What did you teach him?" laughed Marge, struggling to free herself. "You think this is a joke, Marge. You can teach him a lot of things. But you know I have been in business some years now and he—he has been in mischief all that time or more, my guess." Tom drew his wife to him, flour and all, and kissed her.

"Now who messed your coat?" she asked, when she returned to the oven to look at her pie. Tom was busy dusting himself off.

"So you said Clyde has gone to work for his father's sake as well as his own," said Marjory when they were seated at the table.

"How people spend their money," said Marge, looking at her husband and floured both cheeks as she turned around, saying: "Let me see how this added dignity affects you."

quivering against the man's neck, they drove and rode on until the team could hardly be urged to further effort against the infuriated elements. De Spain riding at intervals as far to the right and the left as he dared in vain quest of a landmark. When he halted beside the wagon for the first time he was a mass of snow and ice; horse and rider were frozen to each other. He got down to the ground with a visible effort, and in the singing wind told Duke his plan and purpose.

He had chosen on the open desert a hollow falling somewhat abruptly from the north, and beneath its shelter, white Morgan loosened the horses, he sprang and kicked away a mass of snow. The wagon had been drawn just above the point of refuge, and the two men, with the aid of the wind, dumped it over sideways, making of the body a windbreak over the hollow, a sort of roof, around which the snow, driven by the gale, would heap itself in hard waves. Within this shelter the men stood. Nan, the horses were driven down behind it, and from one of them De Spain took the collar, the tines and the whiffletree. He struck a hitching strap in his pocket, and while Morgan studied the Lady's head, De Spain buckled the collar on her, doubled the reins around the whiffletree, and fastened the collar at her side in front of the saddle.

Nan came out and stood beside him as he worked. When he had finished she put her hand on his shoulder. He held her close, Duke listening, to tell her what he meant to try to do. Each knew it would be the last moment together. "One thing and another have kept us from marriage vows, Nan," said De Spain, looking at length to Morgan to step closer that he might clearly hear. "Nothing must keep us longer. Will you marry me?" She looked up into his eyes. "I've promised you I would. I will promise every time you ask me. I never could have but one answer to that, Henry. It must always be yes."

"Then take me, Henry," he said slowly, "here and now for your wedding husband. Will you do this, Nan?"

Still looking into his eyes, she answered without surprise or fear. "Henry, I do take you."

"And I, Henry, take you, Nan, here and now for your wedding wife, for here for worse, for richer for poorer, from this day forward, until death us do part."

They sealed their pact with a silent embrace. De Spain turned to Duke. "You are the witness of this marriage, Duke. You will see, if an accident happens, that anything, everything I have—some personal property—my father's old ranch north of Medicine Bend—some little money in bank at Sleepy Gut—goes to my wife, Nan Morgan de Spain. Will you see to it?"

"I will. And if it comes to me—your De Spain, will see to it that what stock I have in the gap goes to my wife, Nan, your wife."

She looked from one to the other of the two men. "All that I have," she said in turn, "the hands in the gap, everything around Music Mountain, go to you two equally together, or whichever survives. And if you both live, and I do not, remember my last message—bury the past in my grave."

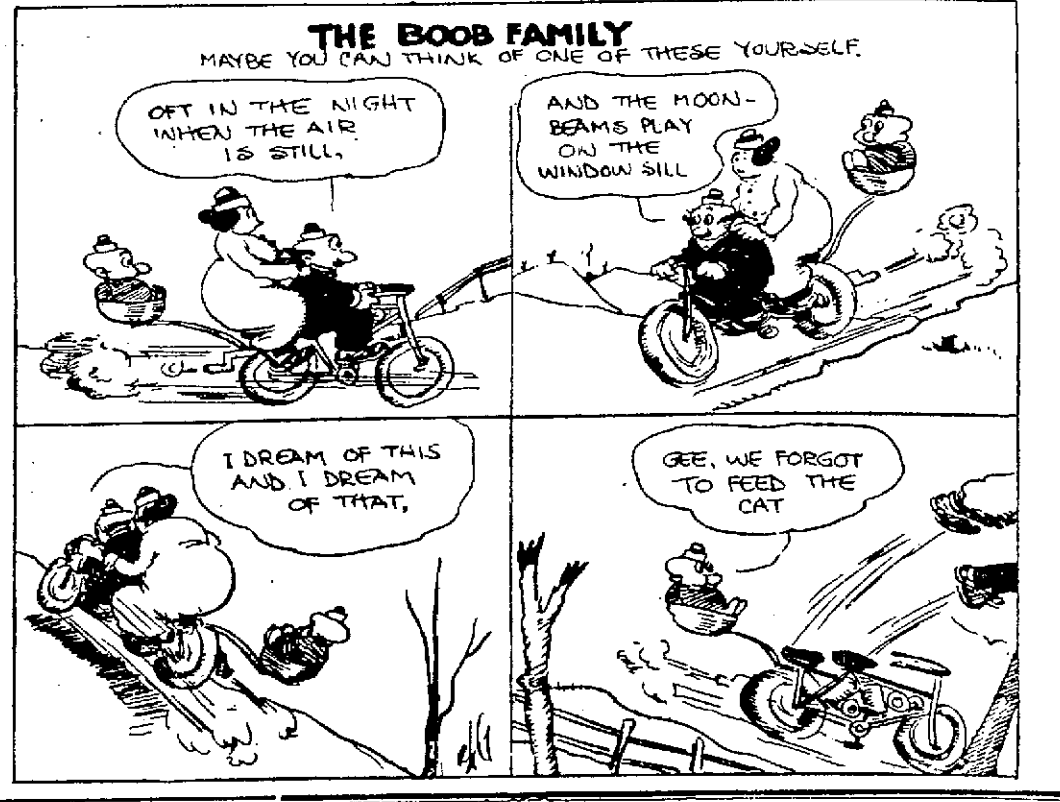

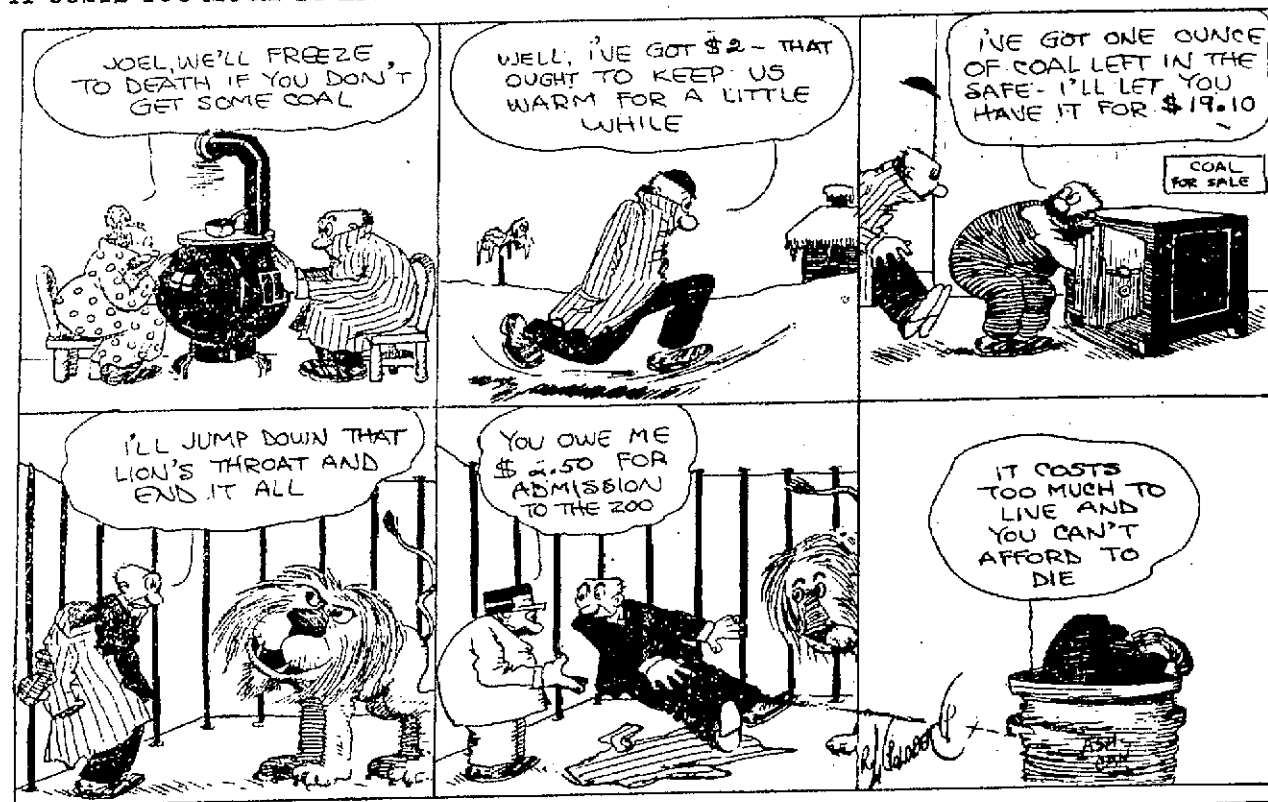

Duke Morgan tested the cinches of the saddle on the Lady once more, unlashed the reins once more from the horse's shoulder, examined each buckle of the collar and every link of the two steps of leather, the reinforced fastenings on the whiffletree, pulled all up again, strapped it, and stood by the head till De Spain swung up into the saddle. He bent down once to whisper a last word of cheer to his wife, and, without looking back, headed the Lady into the storm.

CHAPTER XXX.

Gambling With Death.

Beyond finding his horse a safe headway from the shelter, De Spain made little effort to guide her. He had chosen the Lady, not because she was fresher, for she was not, but because

IT COSTS TOO MUCH TO LIVE AND YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO DIE.

He believed she possessed of the three horses the closest instinct to bring her through the fight for the lives that were at stake. He did not deceive himself with the idea he could do anything to help the beast find a way to succor; that instinct rested wholly in the Lady's hand, not in his. He only knew that if she could not get back to help, he could not. His own part in the effort was quite outside any aid to the Lady—it was no more than to reach alive whatever aid she could find, that he might direct it to where Nan and her companion would endure a few hours longer the fury of the storm.

His own struggle for life, he realized, was with the wind—the roaring wind that hurled his broadsides of frozen snow in monstrous waves across the maddened sky, challenging every living thing. It drove icy knives into his face and ears, paralyzed in its swift grasp his muscles and sinews, fought the stout flow of blood through his veins, and searched his very heart to still it.

Encouraging the Lady with kind words, and unceasing her in her groping efforts as she turned head and tail from the blinding sheets of snow and ice, De Spain let her drift, hoping she might bring them through, what he confessed in his heart to be, the narrowest of chances.

He bent low in his saddle under the unending blasts. He buckled his legs and arms to fight off the fatal cold. He slipped more than once from his seat, and with a hand on the pommel tramped beside the horse to revive his failing circulation, there would come a time, he realized, when he could no longer climb up again, but he staved that issue off to the last possible moment of endurance, because the Lady made better time when he was on her back. When the struggle to remount had been repeated until nature could no longer by any staggering effort be made to respond to his will, until his legs were no longer a part of his benumbed being—until below his hips he had no body answerable to his commands, but only two insensate masses of lead that anchored him to the ground—he still forced the frozen feet to carry him, in a feeble, monstrous gait beside the Lady, while he dragged with his hands on the saddle for her patient aid.

One by one every thought, as if congested in their brain cells, deserted his mind—save the thought that he must not freeze to death. More than once he had hoped the insensate fury of the blizzard might abate. The Lady had long since ceased to try to face it—like a stripped vessel before a hurricane, she was drifting under it. De Spain realized that his helpless legs would not carry him further. His hands, freezing to the pommel, no longer supported him. They finally slipped from it and he fell prostrate in the snow beside his horse. When he would cry out to her his frozen lips could mumble no words. It was the fight no longer of a man against nature, but only of an indomitable soul against a cruel, hateful death. He struggled to his feet only to fall again more heavily. He pulled himself up this time by the strap, got his hands and arms up to the pommel, and clung to it for a few precious moments. But he fell at last, and could no longer rise from the ground. The storm swept unceasingly on.

The Lady, checked by the lines wrapped on his arm, stopped. De Spain lay a moment, then backed her up a step, pulled her head down by the bridle, clasped his wooden arms around her neck, spoke to her, and lifting her head, the mare dragged him to his feet. Clumsily and helplessly he loosened the reins and the whiffletree, beat his hands together with idiotic effort, hooked the middle point of the whiffletree into the elbow of his left arm, brought the forearm and hand against his shoulder, and with the hitching strap lashed his forearm and upper arm tightly together around the whiffletree.

He drew the reins stiffly over the Lady's back, unlashed the cinches of the saddle, pushed it off the horse and, sinking into the snow behind her, struck with his free arm at her feet. Relieved of the saddle, the Lady once more started, dragging slowly behind her through the snow a still breathing human being. Less than an hour before it had been a man. It was hardly more now, as the Lady plodded on, than an insensate log. But not even death could part it again from the horse to which De Spain, alive, had fastened it.

The fearful pain from the tortured arm, torn at times almost from its socket, the gradual snapping of straining ligaments, the constant rupture of capillaries and veins sustained his consciousness for a while. Then the torturing pain abated, the rough dragging shattered the bruised body less. It was as if the Lady and the storm together were making easier for the slowly dying man his last trail across the desert. He still struggled to keep alive, by sheer will power, flickering sparks of consciousness, and to do so concentrated every thought on Nan. It was a poignant happiness to summon her picture to his fading senses; he knew he should hold to life as long as he could think of her. Love, stronger than death, welled in his heart. The bitter cold and the merciless wind were kinder as he called her image from out of the storm. She seemed to speak—to lift him on her arms. Ahead, distant mountains rose, white-peaked. The sun shone. He rode with her through green fields, and a great peace rested on his weary senses.

Lady Jane, pushing on and on, enlightened by that instinct before which the reason of man is weak and pitiful, seeing, as it were, through the impenetrable curtain of the storm where refuge lay, herself a slow-moving crust of frozen snow, dragged to her journey's end—to the tight-shut doors of the Calabasas barn—her unconscious burden, and stood before them patiently waiting until someone should open for her. It was one of the heartbreaks of tragic day that no one ever knew just when the Lady reached the door or how long she and her unconscious master waited in the storm for admission. A startled exclamation from John Letever, who had periodically and anxiously left the red-hot stove in the office to walk moodily to the window, brought the man tumbling over one another as he ran from his companions to throw open the outer door and pull the drooping horse into the barn.

It was the Indian, Scott, who, reading first of all the men everything in the dread story, sprang forward with a stifled exclamation, as the horse dragged in the snow-covered log, whipped a knife from his pocket, cut the incumbered arm and white hand free from the whiffletree, and, carrying the stiffened body into the office, began with insane haste to cut away the clothing.

Letever, perceiving it was De Spain thus drawn to their feet, shivered, while he tore from the hands of Scott's knife the frozen garments, the orders for the snow, the heated water, the warm blankets, the alcohol and brandy, and, stripped to his waist, chafed the marble feet. The Indian, better than a staff of doctors, used the cunning of a sorcerer to revive the spark of inanimate life not yet extinguished by the storm. A fearful interval of suspense followed the silence into which the work settled, a silence broken only by the footsteps of men running to and from the couch over which Scott, Letever and McAlpin, half-naked, worked in mad concert.

De Spain opened his eyes to wander

murder to put on my shoe. I used salves and other things that ate off more of the corn than they did the corn. To cut and dig with knives and scissors, but now no more footing for me. Two drops of 'Gets-It' did all the work. It makes the corn shrivel and get so loose that you can just pick it right off with your fingers. There has been nothing new discovered for corns since 'Gets-It' was born. It's the new way—the common-sense, simple, sure way. 'Gets-It' is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. from one to the other of the faces. He half rose up, struggling in a frenzy with the hands that restrained him. While his companions pleaded to quiet him, he fought them until, restored to its seat of reason, his mind reasserted itself, and, lying exhausted, he told them in his exquisite torture of whom he had left, and what must be done to find and bring them in.

While the relief wagons, equipped with straining teams and flanked by veteran horsemen, were dashing out of the barn, he lapsed into unconsciousness. But he had been able to hold Scott's hand long enough to tell him he must find Nan and bring her in, or never come back.

It was Scott who found her. In their gropings through the blizzard the three had wandered nearer Calabasas than any one of them dreamed. And on the open desert, far south and east of the upper lava beds, it was Scott's horse that put a foot through the bottom of the overturned wagon box. The suspected mound of snow, with the buried horses scrambling to their feet, rose upright at the crash. Duke crouched, half-conscious, under the rude shelter. Lying where he had placed her, snugly between the horses, Scott found Nan. He spoke to her when she opened her staring eyes, picked her up in his arms, called to his companions for the covered wagon, and began to restore her, without a moment of delay, to life. He even promised if she would drink the hateful draft he put to her lips and let him cut away her shoes and leggings and the big cont frozen on her, that in less than an hour she should see Henry de Spain alive and well.

KING OF BULGARIA IS GODFATHER TO NEPHEW OF MONROE NEWSPAPERMAN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Monroe, Wis., Feb. 20.—Albert Staus associated editor of the Green County Herald, has just received word from Stuttgart, Germany, that the christening of his nephew, King Ferdinand of Bulgaria was the godfather. It was the personal request of the king that he become godfather to the son of E. G. Staus, director of the Deutsch Bank of Berlin, who was married in wartime to a daughter of Admiral von Miller. Col. Gausleiner, at the request of King Ferdinand, was present at the christening and delivered to Director Staus a royal letter with the grand cross of the Bulgarian Civil Merit order.

ORANGES BY THE MILLION AT NATIONAL SHOW TODAY

(RECEIVED VIA TELEGRAM.)
San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 20.—The National Orange Show opened here today and for eight days the orange will rule as king of the state. Practically every phase of the citrus fruit industry will figure in the exposition. There will be features from every section of the state, many of them costing thousands of dollars to create. The show will be housed in two mammoth tents, said to be the largest in the country.

A packing house in the show will be in full operation and car loads of oranges will be packed and shipped from the temporary plant to the markets of the east. Estimates now being made by the orange show directors are that from 150,000 to 175,000 people will visit the exposition, under favorable weather conditions.

JAPAN TEA TRADE SLUMPS; BIG LOSS FROM LAST YEAR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Tokio, Feb. 20.—While all other exports of Japan have been on the increase, an inexplicable slump is noticeable in the tea trade, one of the nation's leading products. The total exports of tea from Yokohama, Shimonoseki, Yokkaichi and Kobe for five months recently amounted to 32,393,385 pounds, a loss of 758,135 pounds compared to the corresponding period last year.

Dinner Stories

During a social evening a woman sang for the guests. One of the guests turned to a meek-looking little man who chanced to be at her side, and said: "How awful! Who can she be?" "That," replied the man addressed, "is my wife."

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" stuttered the other. "She's really a—I know she'd sing beautiful if she made a better selection of her music. Who, do you suppose wrote that song?" "I am the author of that song," replied the meek-looking little man.

Eight-year-old Jack was a handsome youngster. Naturally all the ladies who saw him wanted to kiss him, but Jack was not old enough to appreciate this privilege. One afternoon several friends of his mother called, and they all kissed him. Later on he went to the pictures, and instead of his pet cowboy scenes the films were all of a sentimental description. Young Jack returned home pretty well tired of the whole tribe of women. To cap the climax his mother said to him that evening when he was sent to bed: "Give mother a kiss, dear."

"Dad, for goodness sake, kiss this woman!"

A visitor to a certain Brooklyn household was duly amazed by the wonderful likeness between the twins.

"Why," she grasped, "I never saw two children look so much alike. How does your mother tell you apart?" "Well," explained Tommy, "she finds out by spanking us. Clarence hollers louder than I do."

WOMEN TOO AMBITIOUS

Excessive ambition leads all sorts of women to exert themselves beyond their strength. The girl striving for honors in school, the busy housewife, the shop-girl, the society climber or leader, all overtax their natural powers of endurance. Then come nervous troubles, backaches, headaches, frequently organic troubles, which reduce them almost to despair.

Women suffering thus should first recognize the necessity of putting on the brakes and slowing down. Besides this, to remedy the mischief already done to their health, the best reliance is upon that famous and standard medicine for women's ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us and is probably the most easily damaged by bad or careless treatment. If we are very careful, usually no hair troubles. An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair, that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox (which you can get at any druggists) in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemically dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling, lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.

Simple Laxative Remedy Best for Constipation

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Gave Satisfaction When Nothing Else Would.

Nearly every one, at one time or another, suffers from constipation, or inactive bowels, and one of the few conclusions upon which the doctors agree is that regularity of the bowels is an essential to good health.

In the family medicine chest of most well-ordered households will be found one or more of the various remedies recommended for the relief of constipation. In the majority of homes today the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is recognized as the standard laxative. Druggists everywhere report a constantly increasing demand for this splendid remedy which is sold for fifty cents a bottle.

Mr. James Ash, 102 Green St., Cumberland, Md., wrote to Dr. Caldwell that he found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the most effective remedy for constipation he had ever used and that he always keeps a bottle of it on hand for use when necessary.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, and does not gripe or sicken, but acts gently and brings relief in an easy, natural manner. Its freedom from opiates or narcotic drugs makes it the ideal family laxative. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

LAFAYETTE'S BIRTHPLACE IN FRANCE IS NOW AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Paris, Feb. 20.—The Chateau de Chavagnac-Lafayette, birthplace of General Lafayette, Washington's famous aid in the American revolution, is today, like Mount Vernon, an American institution.

Though located near Briode, Department of Haute-Loire, in France, the chateau, after the war, will be available for American homage. During the war according to information today, the building will be partially used for a hospital, but later it will doubtless be converted into a Franco-American memorial museum.

The most up-to-date figures available today show that 50,000 widows already are dependent on the government for life. This figure does not include the results of some of the recent great battles on the Somme.

There are also 100,000 war orphans on the pension lists and 70,000 disabled soldiers have been judged eligible to pension, while 50,000 cases are pending.

Large temporary buildings have been erected in St. James park, just behind the foreign office, in which British pensions will be administered during the war. After peace comes permanent buildings will no doubt be erected in which hundreds of officials will tackle the task of providing for the hundreds of thousands whose lives have been directly altered by the European war.

PENSION PROBLEM MUCH GREATER THAN CIVIL WAR PRESENTED

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, Feb. 20.—America's civil war pension problem could never compare with the colossal task which the British government has just begun to face after, perhaps, half the greatest war in history.

The American committee will endeavor to restore the structure, in all details, to its appearance at the time of the famous general's birth, especially a small room in one of the towers in which he was born.

The American committee is headed by Mrs. William Astor Chandler, as president; John Moffat, chairman, and has among its members Colonel Wood, Mrs. M. S. Marshall, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Governor Morris, Booth Tarkington, Owen Wister and many others.

FIRST AMERICAN VESSEL TO BRAVE BLOCKADE IS DUE IN ZONE TODAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, Feb. 20.—The steamer Orlean, the first American ship carrying contraband to brave the German blockade since the break in the Franco-American relations, which sailed from this port Feb. 19, is due in the submarine zone on her way to Bordeaux today.

Orlean sailed unarmed, unstriped, flying the American flag, and owned, officered and mostly operated by Americans.

The Orlean is owned by the Oriental Navigation company of 17 Battery Place, New York, and it is her first trip under American registry. Should this ship be sunk without warning by a submarine commander it might bring a sharp climax to the strained situation between Germany and the United States.

Good Old Home-Made Family Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind—Easy and Cheaply Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare. Get from any druggist a pint of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you a quart of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils. This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of the cough and gives absolute immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed throat and breaks the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, whooping cough and tracheitis, asthma, is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine oil, combined with guaiacum and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs. To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for "Pinex" and don't Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine oil, combined with guaiacum and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.
